

Bachelor thesis "Squatting as a political problem" deals with the phenomenon of Czech squatting after 1989. Due to lack of relevant literature it focuses at first on accurate definition of squatting and shows some possibilities of its political determination. It farther describe the collision of squatting ideas with present concept of democracy and Czech law and emphasizes the discrepancy between illegality and legitimacy. Important parts of this thesis are interviews with former squaters and representants of anarchist movement.